THE PROBLEM

Senegalese think in Wolof. Paperwork demands French.

A language gap

Letters, contracts, invoices and official reports must be in formal French. Most people speak and think in Wolof.

No keyboard, no computer

Without French-writing fluency or a computer, people pay informal scribes per document today.

It's urgent

A malformed document can stall an administrative process for weeks — at a bank, a court, an employer.

THE SOLUTION

Speak Wolof. Get a properly formatted French document.

Copilot edits the document

Not a chatbot — an AI agent that writes and edits the open document directly from a typed or spoken instruction.

Dictate in Wolof or French

Voice messages are transcribed and translated automatically; Copilot acts on them immediately.

Import & extract

A PDF, scan or photo becomes editable text and tables — ready to correct and export.

MARKET

A francophone, mobile-money-first market, ignored by global AI.

10M+

Wolof speakers across Senegal, Gambia and Mauritania — none served by Word, Google Docs or ChatGPT.

90%+

Mobile money penetration in Senegal via Wave — payment without a bank account or card.

West Africa

Francophone, mobile-money-first neighbors (Mali, Côte d'Ivoire, Guinea) share the same gap.

TECHNOLOGY

Built on proven models, tuned for Wolof and local paperwork.

Anthropic Claude

Powers Copilot's document-editing agent: a tool-calling layer that edits a live rich-text document in place.

Soynade Research

Wolof speech-to-text and translation models power dictation and voice messages to Copilot.

Tuned OCR pipeline

Scan and photo extraction built around Senegalese administrative document layouts.

Declarative infrastructure

Odoo-based web app on Kubernetes (Linode), Neon Postgres, GitOps with ArgoCD — every deployment version-controlled.

BUSINESS MODEL

Usage-based, paid with mobile money.

Prepaid credits

1 XOF = 1 credit, topped up via Wave — no bank account or card needed.

Billed per action

Built-in affiliate loop

Scribes, community organizers and students earn a commission on every top-up they refer.
